Live Free Home Health Care names Caregiver of the Month

Monday, September 20, 2010

September is the inaugural month of the Live Free Home Health Care “Caregiver of the Month” Award, and April Nile has been selected, according to Jennifer Harvey, clinical director at the agency.

With Live Free Home Health Care for two years, Nile, a licensed nursing aide, is currently studying for her registered nurse degree at Lakes Region Community College in Laconia.

“I really enjoy the one on one relationship of home health care,” said April. “We have the time to care for the whole person, and very often their families as well. I am constantly amazed at how much a patient benefits from being in their own home.”

According to Nile, she usually works daytime hours, also works at the corporate office in Bristol, and is on call every few weeks.

Nile is particularly interested in working with patients with dementia.

“We are there not only for the patient, but for the family as well. Families really struggle and I find that they are comfortable having us to lean on as well.”

Nile plans include earning her RN degree and remaining in the home health care field.

“April has been an exceptional member of the Live Free team. She is able to seamlessly transition from one client to another with the clients having greatly varying needs. Clients and families continually give positive feedback about April and request her back more often.” said Harvey, a registered nurse. “As part of her selection as Caregiver of the Month, April will also receive a well deserved bonus.”
